VIGIL: Calum visits George

Family fears for Best

GEORGE Best was clinging to survival last night on a life-support machine as his desperate family kept a vigil at his hospital bedside.

The football legend was placed on the machine when his condition deteriorated suddenly on Friday, after he developed a severe lung infection.

His distraught son Calum rushed to the Cromwell Hospital in West London and returned there yesterday with other family members, including George's elderly father, Dickie.

George's ex-wife Alex said she was praying for his recovery after doctors warned he is "extremely ill". But a source close to Best, 59, revealed that his family now fear the worst as he "has lost the will to live".

■ by SUSAN HILL & REBECCA VARLEY

The source added: "George's life has always been about booze and birds but he has been in hospital now for nearly two months - and that is not how he would want to spend his remaining days."

"If he was well enough he would have discharged himself from hospital - that's what George is like."

Fighter

"He has been a fighter all his life but sadly there just doesn't seem to be any more fight left in him."

The family have already been warned that George may never regain consciousness and the pal added: "This really is as bad as it gets. We're preparing ourselves that he won't wake up."

The grim news came after Best's doctor, Professor Roger Williams, said yesterday that the ex-Manchester United and Northern Ireland star had suffered a "big setback" in his battle to recover from illness brought on by years of alcohol abuse.

Best was admitted to the hospital with an infection last month and, until recently, his condition had been improving.

Prof. Williams, speaking outside the hospital said: "Mr Best has been admitted back to intensive care."

"He has got a new and severe infection. He is on dialysis and he is very poorly at the moment."

THREATS TO COSTA WIFE

Jailed killer's hate letters

THE estranged wife of Costa killer Tony King fears for her life - despite the evil murderer being behind bars.

We can reveal he has sent chilling letters to Cecilia, threatening her and an old friend who he wrongly claims is responsible for another murder on the Costa.

In a scrawl on prison-issue paper King warned Cecilia, who originally told police she thought he might be a killer, not to say any more.

He wrote: "You are so dirty Cecilia and so wrong about everything. Don't you dare say one more lie about me."

And threatening to take former pal Robbie Graham out, he added: "I swear on my daughter's soul before God that if it takes my last breath on this planet I will make him pay for what he did."

Brutal

King, 40, was last week jailed for 36 years for the brutal murder of a Spanish schoolgirl.

Authorities in the Costa del Sol suspect he may be a serial killer responsible for at least two other murders.

Police in the UK meanwhile want to quiz him over seven unsolved killings.

Brave Cecilia, 39, refuses to be scared by King's threats, which could help keep him in prison way beyond the sentence he was given for the murder of 17-year-old Sonia Carabantes.

But in an exclusive interview with the Daily Star Sunday she said she wishes she could change her surname from his.

She said: "I'm only married to that monster still because it costs money I don't have at the moment to divorce."

"The only good thing that's come out of being his wife is our girl Sabrina."

In the 1980s King, born Tony Bromwich, was jailed for ten years for attacking women in north London. He changed his surname by deed poll after leaving prison and later met Cecilia, from Barnsley, South Yorks, at a south London nightclub.

In 1997 the couple moved to Spain. They split three years later but kept in contact because Cecilia allowed him to see Sabrina.

It was after one of those visits that she phoned Spanish police to say she thought King could be Sonia's killer.

Cecilia, who still lives on the Costa, said: "He lied to me and so many people I love, those I unknowingly put at risk by bringing him into their homes."

"I've sent Sabrina to England to live with my mum until this is all over."

■ EVIL: King in handcuffs during his trial in Malaga last year and left, with wife Cecilia and their baby daughter Sabrina, now eight and safely out of his clutches

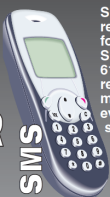

£17m FOR THE KIDS

CHILDREN in Need marked its 26th year with a record £17.2million in pledges on Friday night. The BBC said the overall total was expected to grow to more than £30million.

Madonna, Tony Blair and the Beeb's news-readers were among the celebrities who took part in the seven-hour show.

"This will make a real difference to the lives of children in the UK who really need help," said the charity's chief executive Sally Deignan.

MARKET HORROR

A CAR bomb killed 13 people and injured 15 at a market in Baghdad yesterday. Police said the toll could increase.

The attack came as Iraqi politicians from all sides were scheduled to hold talks in Cairo, Egypt, aimed at easing the bloodshed that has plagued Iraq since the US-led invasion in 2003.

On Friday more than 80 people were killed in a series of suicide attacks in the Iraqi capital and Khanaqin, near the Iranian border.

THE LUCI GIRL WHO ROMPED WITH POP STAR...

I'm Robbie's little bit of Argyv bargy

LATINO sexpot Luciana Salazar has revealed how she let Robbie Williams entertain her – to a steamy night of passion.

The 25-year-old blonde, who is now working on her movie debut, is one of the biggest stars in South America.

And she certainly shone out for 31-year-old Robbie, who wound down after a gig in Buenos Aires last year by romping with the babe. Robbie later declared Argentinian women are "the best in the world" before cheekily adding: "I know – because I've tried them!"

Speaking about the night she shared with Robbie for the first time sexy Salazar told a pal: "We'd chatted briefly and he liked the look of me. After singing, he found me, took my hand and led me away."

Then they enjoyed a night of Argyv bargy in Robbie's hotel suite. She told the pal: "It was a wild night and I loved every minute. He was a proper gentleman, clearly very experienced with women – and he knows what he likes in the bedroom. It was very intense."

She finally left the star's room at 4am because she was working later that day.

But now she says she's got a new man who is even more famous than Robbie.

She said: "Of the 80 romances I am supposed to have had only five were true."

"Now I am in love and it is complicated because the person is very well known – pretty much worldwide."

"Only my mum knows who it is!"

QUEASY DOES IT: Sheree and Dickinson look terrified at 12,000ft

I'M A

A day of chunder and frightening for stars

I'M A Celebrity stars are sick of the jungle already after their first day turned into a disaster.

The ten celebs endured a hair-raising introduction to the Aussie outback on a day that left them stunned.

Their horrifying day saw:
 ●Bossy Carol Thatcher vomit in mid-air as she was hurled from an aircraft – proving she was no Iron Lady like her mum Margaret.
 ●Former EastEnders star Elaine Lordan so sick with fear after falling off a tightrope of terror along with pal Antony Costa that she collapsed and medics had to be called.

●Singer Jimmy Osmond almost become the no-haired lover from Liverpool when he set himself ablaze lighting the campfire.
 The jaw-dropping scenes came after the stars gathered together for the first time.

The celebs were taken to the luxury Versace Hotel in Surfers Paradise on the Gold Coast and divided into two groups.

TV bosses told Carol Thatcher, 52, David Dickinson, 64, Sid Owen, 33, Sheree Murphy, 30, and Jilly Gooldeen, 49, that they would be entering the jungle camp in a very special way – skydiving like Paul Burrell did on the last series.

Perturbed Sheree cried: "I so don't want to do this. I don't care, I won't regret it. I don't want to."

Cool

"Honestly, I feel like crying. I'm not even there yet. It's just gonna get worse."

Brave ex-EastEnders Sid was the first to jump.

He and his tandem skydiver leaped from the aircraft and dropped 12,000 feet through the skies and into the jungle.

Carol decided to go next but her bottle went as she left the plane.

She ended up vomiting in mid-air and afterwards apologised to the camera crews filming her after some were splattered.

Jilly swore like a trooper as she jumped out the plane – and then the moment of truth came for scared Sheree.

With blue lips and a pale face the Emmerdale actress took some deep breaths and then hurled herself out.

She had her eyes shut throughout the whole ordeal and screamed until her parachute was safely open.

Cool Dickinson was the last to jump and afterwards claimed the experience was "amazing".

The other half of the group – Jenny Frost, 27, Antony Costa, 24, Elaine Lordan, 39, Kimberley Davies, 32, and Jimmy Osmond, 42 – had to reach the campsite by walking across a high-wire above the tree canopy.

And they too had plenty of dramas. Blue singer Antony was the first to brave the balancing act and fell off before regaining his composure at the second attempt. Perky Jimmy proved to be a real nimble-footed star on the highwire and cleared the crossing without any problem, as did former Atomic Kitten babe Jenny and actress Kimberley.

But terrified Elaine ran into trouble – slipping and falling after just a few seconds.

She shrieked with terror and she had to be rescued by crew members as the ordeal became too much.

The ten jungle stars were then reunited in camp but the drama, which can be seen on the first episode of the ITV1 show tonight at 9pm, was not over. Elaine was still suffering from the shock of the high-wire and despite trying to chill out with a cigarette the former soap actress could not get the ordeal out of her head.

After complaining of feeling shaky and weak she collapsed.

Chaos

Elaine's pals Sid and Sheree rushed to her side to comfort her while worried producers sent in a team of medics to take a look at her to see if she was alright.

They gave her water to re-hydrate her and then declared her fit to continue.

There was more chaos in the clearing when Jimmy attempted to get the campfire going.

He was fanning the flames with kerosene when a fireball jumped out at him.

And the shaken and singed star admitted: "I don't need a shave, let's put it that way."

JUNGLE BRIEFS

FAVOURITE: Sid Owen

■ THAT'S MORE LIKE IT! Kim's a lot comfier on home ground and in her glamour togs. But she's still determined to do her best to win, cheered on by the family

■ BOOKIES reckon the race to be king or queen of the jungle is a battle of the soap stars.

Ladbroke have ex-EastEnders Sid Owen at 4-1 with former Emmerdale star Sheree Murphy at 5-1. The outsiders are Jimmy Osmond and Carol Thatcher at 16-1.

■ SPECULATION is mounting that Cannon and Ball could make a shock entry into the camp later this week.

But the show's executive producer Richard Cowles refused to confirm or deny the guest appearance.

■ EX-BLUE singer Antony Costa reckons he won't gawp at the babes in the jungle – in case he upsets his long-term love Adele Silva. The red-blooded star said: "I won't be checking out the other girls as I've got Adele. I'm there to have a laugh and not look at the girls."

■ FOOD and Drink expert Jilly Gooden isn't scared of having to eat any nasty bush tucker. She has already tasted some of the world's most disgusting delicacies. The 49-year-old said: "I've had a drink with copulating scorpions in it."

■ EX-EASTENDER Elaine Lordan is hoping to reinvent herself by appearing on I'm A Celebrity. The star, who was axed from the BBC soap after her binge drinking, declared: "I want to do this and show the public a different side to me."

■ JIMMY Osmond has promised not to sing in the jungle – in case it gets him kicked out.

The ex-child star, 42, who wowed millions in the 1970s with Long-Haired Lover From Liverpool, said: "I've no plans to sing unless it's as a group round the campfire."

■ VIEWERS can tune into ITV1 tonight at 9pm. Coverage continues on ITV2 at 11.10pm.

LONELY: Jungle babe Kimberley misses her tots

Leaving the kids is pants

■ JUNGLE cutie Kimberley Davies got her hands on Jenny Frost's pants as soon as they reached camp.

The 32-year-old Aussie-born former Neighbours babe is no stranger to the world of undies as you can see from our world exclusive picture.

And Kimberley, nicknamed "Bush Babe" by her new pals, was quick to pass comment on new pal Jenny's special pants when they started to unpack.

Unpacking her rucksack, 27-year-old Jenny produced a pair of sensible white knickers and revealed that that's how she's keeping her loved ones close to her.

She said: "I've had pictures put on my knickers of my boyfriend and puppy George, and my nephews."

Jenny, who also took in a few pairs of sexy Alexander McQueen knickers, is not the only one who is missing their loved ones.

Sexy Kimberley – who is best known for playing Annalise Hartman in the BBC1 soap – said she was missing her two children Isabella, two and Joshua, one.

Jenny gets frosty with dirty Dicko

ATOMIC Kitten babe Jenny Frost has branded David Dickinson "a psycho".

And she fears she will get picked on in the jungle camp.

Jenny, 27, admitted there may be some rumbles in the jungle among some of the more competitive stars.

When asked about the possibility of bust-ups, Jenny immediately identified the Bargain Hunt star as someone with who she'll have "bobby dazzling" arguments.

She said: "I only know a few of the people in the line-up and one of them is David Dickinson. We did a show together a few months ago.

"I gave him the nickname Psycho Dicko. We were doing this car thing and he ran me off the road and burst my tyre.

"He was dead serious. He was gritting his teeth, getting really into it because he's quite competitive.

Growling

"I was just having a laugh. All of a sudden I span around, my tyre burst and I just saw a big man with a tan growling at me!"

Jenny also thinks some of the younger celebs may clash with the older ones and cause tensions.

She said: "I think I'll get told off by a couple of the older ones like Carol Thatcher and David Dickinson. I'm always getting told off.

"I can be driving down the road and a perfect stranger tells me off. I'm told off all the time!"

"Normally, I'm quite calm and it takes a lot to get me going.

"But I'll have a go at somebody, if somebody is really rude or takes the mickey.

"I don't like it when people pick on each other either. I will speak my mind but only when it's really called for."

Sweet-toothed Jenny confessed she managed to smuggle a caseload of chocolate and crisps into Australia, which has strict rules about bringing food into the country.

She breezed through Customs with her case of sweets and treats, mainly because security guards were more eager to size her up than bother checking her case.

The chart star giggled:

NERVOUS: Jenny arrives in jungle

EXCLUSIVE
by PETER DYKE & MARK JEFFERIES

"Everyone who has done this show says they lose weight in the jungle.

"And although I probably will lose a bit of weight in there, as soon as I come out it will go straight back on again. I'll be straight into my suitcase."

Sexy Jenny, who is engaged to DJ Dominic

Thrupp, says she signed up for the show to have the "adventure of a lifetime".

And she knows that with the cameras on her 24 hours a day, fans will be hoping to see her strip off.

But she giggled: "I'm not really bothered about being in a bikini.

"It's up to you how you handle it.

"I'll just be getting on with what I'm doing, which is hopefully having a laugh with everyone."

SMILEY popster Jimmy Osmond has been warned not to flash his famous white teeth in the jungle in case they attract vicious magpies.

Wildlife experts have told Jimmy, 42, who had a No.1 hit with Long Haired Lover From Liverpool in 1972 aged nine, that he should keep his mouth shut if he wants to stay safe.

The rain forest magpies are twice the size of British ones. They swoop and attack anything white, shiny or sparkly.

This isn't the first time one of the Celebrity stars has been warned that their famous trademark characteristic might land them in trouble Down Under.

Last year winner Joe Pasquale was told to lower his squeaky voice in case the high pitch attracted hyenas into the camp.

I'm a reporter, get me out of here...

THIS is the jungle jail where the stars will be locked up if they break the show's strict rules.

TV bosses decided to get tough and make life hell for those who step out of line.

All celebs must adhere to a set of rules for health and safety in camp - such as making sure the fire is always lit, that three people are always in camp and not to leave food lying around because it attracts rats.

Our man on the spot, Peter Dyke, got a sneak peek of the hell hole where the only lighting is a kerosene lantern.

Exec producer Richard Cowles said: "It won't be a pleasant experience, I can assure you."

MURDER OF A

Five held as family mourn shot officer

■ WE WILL MISS YOU
SO: A colleague of Sharon and wounded Teresa expresses her sadness with flowers in Bradford yesterday

■ PARTNER:
Sharon's pal, PC Teresa Milburn, who was shot but survived

THE devastated family of supermum policewoman Sharon Beshenivsky were last night trying to come to terms with her murder.

■ by EMMA BAMFORD

As police arrested five people in connection with the killing, it emerged that Sharon, 38, had been due to join her family on Friday evening for her daughter Lydia's fourth birthday.

Shortly before the celebration was due to start, she was shot in the chest as she attended an alarm call at a Bradford travel agency.

Her husband Paul, 42, her three children and two stepchildren are now inconsolable.

Colin Cramphorn, Chief Constable of West Yorkshire, said yesterday: "Sharon was very proud of her family and they are devastated by their loss."

Sharon's patrol partner, PC Teresa Milburn, 37, was also shot in the Friday afternoon incident. She is said to be "traumatised" by the murder of her fellow officer and friend.

Protect

Colleagues across the force moved swiftly into action and four men and a woman were arrested in London yesterday.

It is thought they were still being questioned last night.

Sharon, of Keighley, West Yorkshire, changed her job from childminder to police officer two years ago to try to protect the public from criminals like the ones who shot her.

She first became a community support officer then qualified as a constable in February. One former neighbour and close friend said: "She loved her work. She found her job so rewarding. Her death is a massive shock and very tragic."

Another friend, who asked not to be named, said: "No one can believe what has happened. Sharon was just a lovely, lovely person."

"It was her daughter's birthday on Friday and she would have been so looking forward to getting home to see her."

Next-door neighbours Mohammed Niab, 53, and his wife Nisa, 48, added: "It is a terrible thing to happen to such a nice person and we feel for Paul and the children."

"Paul asked one of his friends to come round and tell us Sharon had been shot. We are very shocked and saddened."

Landscape gardener Paul and Sharon's parents, Stan and Jennifer Jagger, were comforting each other yesterday. Stan could only say: "I'm very tired and upset." Paul has two children by Sharon - Paul junior, seven, and Lydia, ten. He is also dad to Emma, 13, and Joshua, ten, from a former relationship.

Sharon also had a 12-year-old son, Samuel, by her previous marriage to Andrew Crowther.

A family friend said: "I feel so, so sorry for those children. They adored Sharon."

Teresa Milburn's family are believed to be at her bedside.

She is married to Chris and has a 16-year-old son James. She was a machinist before joining the force in April last year.

She and Sharon went to the travel agency in Morley Street, Bradford, after staff set off a silent alarm.

Before they could enter the building, they were confronted by three men and several shots rang out.

Colleagues rushed to the scene and one tried to revive Sharon but she was declared dead on arrival at hospital.

Det Supt Andy Brennan, who is leading the murder inquiry, said yesterday that three men - at least two of them armed - had gone into the travel agency just before the alarm was raised.

Cash

They jumped over the counter and pistol-whipped employee Akeel Yusuf - who was recovering in hospital last night.

Cash was stolen but it is not yet known how much. The robbers fled when Sharon and Teresa arrived. They escaped in a silver car.

Footage from CCTV cameras in the area is being examined.

Police have already recovered several gun cartridges.

All the children adored Sharon

Armour dilemma

■ BOTH Sharon Beshenivsky and Teresa Milburn were wearing their regulation body armour, police said.

Most forces issue their officers with stab vests for use on routine patrol.

The sleeveless vests, worn like a jacket, provide protection for the upper body.

■ They are effective against attacks with weapons including knives, blades and screwdrivers.

The vests also offer some protection against bullets. Dedicated firearms officers wear a thicker kind of body armour - although that, too, doesn't offer total protection.

■ Police said yesterday that no one has yet been able to invent a material that can give full protection against both knives and bullets. Tom McGhie, chairman of the West Yorkshire Police Federation, said there were problems with giving officers body armour that was more protective.

■ He said: "We've got to weigh one up against the other. There are types of body armour which offer a much higher level of ballistic protection but the problem is they'd be almost unwearable."

Risk

"We've got to weigh up the issue of protection and practical issues enabling officers to do their jobs."

■ West Yorkshire Chief Constable Colin Cramphorn said: "The greater risk to a normal patrol officer is actually from edged or bladed weapons. Nothing more could have been done. They had their full protective equipment."

PROTECTION: A police stab vest

SUPERMUM

■ DEVOTED: Sharon loved her job, her home and the children. She joined the police force after another career to help make the lives of people safer

TEARS OF SORROW: Colleagues weep and a tribute, below

'We'd have loved 30 like her'

■ TRIBUTES have been flooding in from friends and colleagues to murdered policewoman Sharon Beshenivsky.

West Yorkshire Chief Constable Colin Cramphorn said her colleagues in Bradford South Division described her as "an enthusiastic, mature and very positive colleague".

■ He said: "They remember, in particular, her infectious laugh and I think her inspector said it all for me when he said he would have liked 30 Sharons on the shift."

Several bunches of flowers have been laid at the edge of the cordon, which Mr Cramphorn said would remain for "as long as it takes".

■ One card read: "To our brave sister who died protecting us. Bradford will never forget you."

Another, signed by Andy Khan, said: "The whole of the nation weeps as our fallen heroic angel sleeps. We will never forget."

■ Former neighbour Shahid Ahmed, 38, said: "Sharon and Paul were a lovely couple. They were always quite friendly and sociable people. They seemed like a happy family. There was always lots of laughter from over the fence."

■ He added: "It's horrible to be told someone you know has died in such horrible circumstances. I was quite dumbfounded."

■ Another friend, John Whitaker, said: "I knew the family quite well. We would always say hello when we saw each other across the fence."

■ "They were always very friendly. My son used to play with their children. I feel so sorry for Paul. He has my complete sympathy. I can't imagine what he's going through."

CAUGHT: Gary was on run

Glitter under arrest

PAEDOPHILE Gary Glitter was under arrest again last night.

The 61-year-old former glam rocker was detained by an immigration official at Ho Chi Minh City airport in Vietnam.

Police want to talk to Glitter - real name Paul Francis Gadd - over claims that he has taken two "child brides" home.

Fled

It is understood that investigators have spoken to a 15-year-old girl found at his rented house in the Vietnamese resort of Vung Hau.

Brit Glitter fled from the building a week ago, sparking a manhunt.

The immigration officer who detained him was on the look-out.

Under Vietnamese law, the charge of obscene acts with a minor carries a penalty of one to five years in jail.

The singer served two months in jail in Britain in 1999 after admitting 54 offences related to child pornography.

He has been expelled from Cambodia and Cuba.

McFADDEN: I WANT MY KIDS BACK

Soap star's legal fight with his ex

EASTENDERS hardman Steve McFadden is launching a legal battle to get custody of his daughters.

The soap star has had a string of bust-ups with the children's mum, Angela Bostock.

And he has been sick with worry about 18-month-old Mollie and Teona, ten, after the couple's relationship hit an all-time low two weeks ago.

McFadden was having a furious row with Bostock when she lashed out and punched him in the face – as he held toddler Mollie in his arms.

Bostock, 29, was cautioned by police over the assault but the 46-year-old BBC1 star is so distraught over her behaviour that he now plans to try for custody.

And the Daily Star Sunday can exclusively reveal that the doting dad is fighting to prove both children would be better off with him.

Dogging

During the summer McFadden, who recently returned to Albert Square as tough guy Phil Mitchell, was publicly shamed when Bostock went public with claims that he had forced her to go dogging.

She claimed he had dragged her to various public car parks and made her have sex with him in front of strangers.

But a source told us: "Steve is a doting father and he has been concerned about his two little girls for some time."

"Angela doesn't think twice about dumping them on him when it suits her."

"He's only stayed in the house round the corner from theirs in East Finchley so he can be close to his kids."

"Steve doesn't feel it's good for the girls to live with Angela full-time. He just wants to protect them.

"And the allegations about dogging hit them all hard. The story in the newspapers led to a lot of playground teasing and caused the girls unnecessary stress."

In an exclusive interview with the Daily Star Sunday, Angela's former pal Mark Fish, 45, said: "I was disgusted when I first saw the dogging stories. Angela didn't seem to care how her daughter might feel."

"I've never met Steve but she is always bad-mouthing him."

Steve and Angela met at a party in 1995 and Teona arrived soon after but they split when McFadden started a relationship with EastEnders co-star Lucy Benjamin, 35 (Lisa Fowler).

They broke up after he was caught back with Angela, who soon fell pregnant with Mollie – but McFadden demanded DNA tests to prove he was her father.

Nik heads for the City

SEXY former Coronation Street star Nikki Sanderson has landed her first leading role since leaving the hit soap – on BBC1 drama Holby City.

The bubbly brunette, who played Weatherfield hairdresser Candice, will be seen playing a minx called Monica at the end of February.

Her raunchy role will see her as a very ambitious solicitors' secretary who gets too close to her boss.

Last night Holby City series producer Emma Turner, said: "Nikki is a great actress and we are delighted to have secured her in the role." Nikki, 21,

by LEIGH PURVES

decided to leave the ITV soap so she could see more of her boyfriend, former Corrie co-star Danny Young, 19.

The babe is also being swamped with recording contracts after her stunning performances on ITV1's Celebrity Stars in Their Eyes.

She won as LeAnn Rimes in 2002 and performed brilliantly as Britney Spears last year.

She also appeared on ITV's Madonna Mania special singing

Papa Don't Preach and wearing a £12,000 diamond-studded dress.

But Nik, who still lives with her mum in Bury, Lancs, has been determined to pick her next project carefully.

She turned down an offer to appear on I'm a Celebrity Get Me Out of Here! and has decided to concentrate on landing more acting roles before rushing out a pop single.

A pal said: "Her role in Holby City is perfect. It will prove there is more to her than Candice."

"It's a sexy part as well, so that's just up her street."

I'm so fad-up of food fascists

WOW - so everything we thought we knew about healthy eating is wrong. The bone-headed bullsh*tters who pontificate about what we should and shouldn't be sticking in our gobs have been leading us up the garden path.

First up came the news that beer and curry are - hurrah! - good for you. Good for your heart, your digestion and, well, just good for you. So the next time you wake up with a thumping hangover and a ringpiece like a bullet wound, consider it a workout. I cracked open a lager and ordered a take-away chicken jalfrezi to celebrate and ordered an extra naan with it when I heard that those tw*tts who jog on holiday are doing themselves more harm than good.

Apparently, the poisonous emissions from sea algae damage the lungs of the posing ponces who troll up and down the beach instead of chilling on a sun lounger. The triple whammy for health bores came courtesy of the news that - and you're going to love this - decaffeinated coffee is bad for the ticker because it could lead to disease of the arteries.

So this confirms what we all sort of knew...which is that any food and drink our body craves - salt, sugar, booze, ANYTHING - is good for us in moderation. It ain't rocket science, it's rocket salad.

Only the whingeing, whining wallies who make a living promoting diet fads and food scares think any different and for years we've believed 'em.

Take the sudden rise of food intolerances. Not allergies, which we know exist and are dangerous. No, I said INTOLERANCES. Wheat intolerances, dairy intolerances, all of which make me feel pretty intolerant because they do not exist.

They are inventions of the hypocritical health food industry. You wonder why I call them "hypocritical"? Well, instead of just telling us to avoid processed food and eat more fresh veg and fruit, it makes billions flogging us vitamin drinks and supplements that can damage our systems. But I don't want you to think I'm intolerant - I'm here to help. Here's The Ross Guide to curing any and every intolerance. Starve the silly bleeders for 72 hours, then see if their intolerance stops 'em washing down a cheese and pickle sandwich on white bread with a pint or two of milk. Oh, and a double kebab with extra chilli for the vegans.

Because what really lies behind the invented intolerances of these fad-food fillies is the desire to stay stick-thin. Curry Kate Winslet has dropped three dress sizes, it was announced last week. It was said that she did this by cutting out wheat and dairy products. Get the picture?

At least Kate didn't fake an intolerance. She was just determined to get rid of her female shape. Let's face it, who do lads fancy more, bone bag Keira Knightley or boss bird Abi Titmuss? (And Abi doesn't worry about eating bread, spuds and rice - she'll stick anything in her mouth. Allegedly.)

Excuse me - I'm off to the curry house for a workout.

LOOKS like Chrissie Watts is heading for the clink after her nefarious shenanigans to cover her tracks. Let's hope so...and let's hope that the funeral scenes recently filmed in Walford are for Dennis Watts (who's obviously heading for bigger and better things) and not for her. The send-off certainly wasn't for Alfie Moon, who'll be heading off into the sunset alive and with Kat Slater on his arm if the slightly clunky plot clues are anything to go by. Actress Tracy-Ann Oberman, left, has created a really believable baddie in the manipulative, man-eating Chrissie, and I for one would love to see a BBC soap set in a women's prison focusing on her character. BBC's answer to Bad Girls, anyone?

A SURVEY in Weymouth has revealed that 25% of schoolchildren there have got so drunk they've passed out. One in eight has taken a day off class with a hangover and one in 20 has had to have their stomach pumped after OD-ing on booze. Having spent a fortnight in Weymouth in one weekend (the duller place in Western Europe), I'm surprised the figure isn't a lot higher.

CAN'T wait for the start of I'm A Celebrity Get Me Out Of Here (tonight on ITV1 at 9pm). Of course it'll be great to see top TV totty Jenny Frost and Kimberley Davies out there in the tropics but I'm really looking forward to seeing Golden Oldies Carol Thatcher and David Dickinson topping up their Chernobyl tans in the Outback. David looks like he's been covered in creosote, while like he's been covered in a posh pint of Guinness. I also think it's worth a flutter on those two reaching the end.

DUTCH TWEAT

BRUTAL Big Brother producers Endemol, who delight in inflicting shame and humiliation on the public, have announced a new project. Billed as "the biggest practical joke in history", they're conning a group of gullible contestants into thinking they're blasting off into space - when in fact the doughnuts are staying on terra firma while the rest of the country relentlessly takes the piss. It all kicks off on December 7.

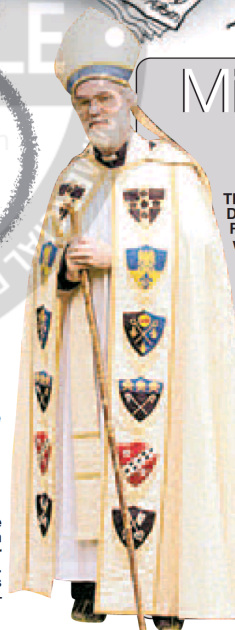

Endemol obviously hope to make a bundle and assume that the poor contestants can take a joke. Which is more than the Dutch company can. Last week a sparrow knocked over 23,000 dominoes set up for a TV world record attempt. Frustrating, shure, but funny ash well, ja? Well nee, actually, as Endemol had the bird - a member of an endangered species - shot dead. Shame they couldn't do that to Derek. Or Kings.

Missionary position

THE Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr Harold Shipman-lookalike Rowan Williams, is in trouble with his congregation over his policy regarding gays.

Personally, I couldn't give a monkey's but nearly half of the church's other main men have signed a letter urging him to re-think his apparent reluctance to bring those churches ordaining practising homosexuals into line.

So I've got a suggestion. Why not offer gay Christians who still want to play hide the sausage the chance to assume the missionary position in China? News out last week says that in about ten years there will be 40million bachelors in China. That's a lot of singletons who might be willing to convert for a Westerner willing to get down on his knees for them.

Zoe carrot dangled

■ ZOE Ball is finding performing on Strictly Come Dancing a piece of cake – thanks to her secret snack sessions in training.

We can reveal that the secret of her success is down to a special incentive dreamed up by her professional dance partner Ian Waite, 35.

■ The babe is addicted to carrot cake and Ian has one ordered in for their daily training sessions. But he's told her that she can only have the cake if she gets her routines just perfect. A show source said:

"When they started doing the rumba, Ian joked that some of Zoe's wiggling made her look like Big Daddy."

"But she soon changed all that."

■ He told her once they had cracked each part of the moves they could take a break and have some carrot cake.

■ "It worked as an incentive and she started putting in more effort. Now he uses the cake trick whenever they have a bad training session."

The DJ is the even-money favourite with Ladbrokes to win the competition.

Chico puts his cheeky bits away

X FACTOR bad boy Chico Slimani has vowed to ditch his X-rating...by keeping his pride and joy in his pants.

The former goatherd and stripper claims to have lured more than 1,000 women into bed, mainly by flashing his chopper during wild party nights.

But now he insists he's done with all that and he's a changed man.

The 34-year-old Moroccan says he's giving up his strip shows.

And the next person who'll get to see his "little Chico" will be the woman he loves.

That could be a hard one, as it were. Unless he's got a special lady already in the frame...

Could it be former Eurovision beauty Javine Hylton - who was right there in the X Factor crowd last night?

Last week, it was revealed that Chico and singer Javine, 23, had swapped phone numbers after hooking up at the Children's Champions awards.

She was unsure whether to follow up and make a date. So he might just have decided that he has to clean up his act.

And it won't do his future career any harm either.

Chico has told friends: "All the stripping and chasing after women every night is in the past."

"I never thought I would get this far in the X Factor competition and I am just making the most of it."

"I can't believe how many people are coming up to me and how many children want to talk to me whenever I'm in public."

Smiles

"It doesn't matter where I am, kids are always shouting for me."

"It is amazing what the show has done for me and I am going to use all this success in a good way."

"I want to put smiles on people's faces and I would love to sing and dance at charity events when the show ends."

"Chico Time is happening right now and I am determined to make the most of it." The cheeky chappy broke new ground on the ITV1 competition last night.

He performed an original song called Chico Time - the same as his telly catchphrase.

Of all the contestants, he's had the biggest rollercoaster ride.

He was dismissed as a novelty act at the start of the televised final stages and it was widely predicted that he'd be the first act sent home.

But he won over thousands of fans and even "Mr Nasty" judge Simon Cowell admitted: "I'm starting to like you."

Last week, the Daily Star Sunday revealed how the Moroccan also risks life and limb every time he struts his stuff.

He jumped into the sea from a cliff-top while on a trip to South Africa last January and seriously injured himself.

The impact pushed his pelvis into his spine and he fractured a bone in his back, affecting the whole nervous system.

Doctors told him it was a "miracle" he had not been paralysed - or even killed.

And they warned that any exertions on stage could lay him low again at any time.

JUNK DIET: Andy Abraham

X boys far too saucy

X FACTOR hunk Andy Abraham and Nicholas Dorsett have been put on a health diet over fears they are ruining their performances by scoffing junk food.

The singers have become firm friends, with 18-year-old Nicholas treating 40-year-old Andy as a father figure while he's away from his own family.

Their eating habits were first criticised by fellow contestant Brenda Edwards. An insider said: "The two of them pour ketchup on everything - which is mainly junk food anyway."

Spotty

"Brenda has been telling them for weeks they should be more careful about what they scoff but they just didn't listen. So now management has stepped in."

"Junk food can make them tired and could affect their skin."

"They need to be full of energy for their stage performances - not bloated and looking tired or spotty."

"They are being given more fruit and vegetables and less fried food."

Show pal Chico Slimani stepped in to help out by cooking the pair a salmon dish to try to stop them chomping on chips.

But amazingly they still covered it in ketchup.

An X Factor spokeswoman confirmed: "Andy and Nicholas are certainly known as The Ketchup Boys."

GREAT: John Timpson

Legend of radio dies, 77

WRITER and broadcaster John Timpson died yesterday aged 77.

The former BBC journalist passed away at the Queen Elizabeth Hospital in King's Lynn, Norfolk, five weeks after his 42-year-old son Nick died suddenly.

Timpson presented BBC Radio 4's Today programme between 1970 and 1986 partnering Jack De Manio, Robert Robinson and finally Brian Redhead.

He also presented Any Questions for three years, and won a Sony Gold Award for outstanding services to radio in 1986.

Admired

Jenny Abramky, director of BBC Radio, who worked as a producer on the Today programme with Timpson, said he was one of radio's greats.

She added: "His sense of humour and his humanity shone through in all his broadcasts."

Kevin Marsh, the current editor of Today, said: "I admired him hugely and he represented everything the BBC stands for."

Timpson was born in Middlesex in 1928 and began his career as a junior reporter on the Wembley News. He leaves a widow and one son.

Quiz over tot death

A MAN was arrested yesterday on suspicion of murder after a new-born baby was found dead at a pub.

An ambulance crew was called to the scene but was unable to save the girl.

Staff at the Woolpack Inn at Boot, near Eskdale, Cumbria, spoke of their shock and distress at finding the tragedy.

The pub owner, who declined to give his name, said: "The staff are shocked and stunned by events."

Detectives are trying to establish the circumstances of the birth and death of the child.

They confirmed that a 34-year-old local man had been released on police bail. Efforts are still being made to trace the baby's parents.

IRONING MIKE

Groom with a view as macho Tyson finds his feminine side

BANGED UP: Tyson worries about his future while in jail, right, after being nicked by Brazilian police following a rumpus with a snapper – and it appears he's now decided to be a new man

EXCLUSIVE
by DOMINIK LEMANSKI

IRON Mike Tyson is getting in touch with his feminine side in a bid to stay out of trouble.

Earlier this month the former world heavyweight boxing champion was locked up in a Brazilian jail cell after being accused of shoving a cameraman.

Last week an after-dinner speech at the Heritage Hotel in Derby ended in chaos when the highly-charged atmosphere he'd help stir up spilled over into violence.

We can reveal the incidents were the final straw for hardman Mike and his advisors. And the bad guy has started his quest by spending every day being pampered at London's swanky Park Lane Hotel. Staff at the Hilton's Kaye and George barber's were amazed when the boxer, who once bit off a chunk of rival Evander Holyfield's ear told them about his plans.

Tyson, 39, splashed out more than £1,000 on special treatments throughout the week on the orders of his handlers desperate to change his image.

Included in his daily regime were £45 pedicures, £20 manicures, shampoos, haircuts and shaves worth £45.

A source at the hotel said: "At first he looked a real tough guy. He was surrounded by loads of bodyguards."

"When I asked him for an autograph he said, 'Fk you!' and I feared the worst."

"But amazingly since then he has been like a pussycat and has been constantly getting pampered."

"I didn't think he was serious but he has been in regularly to get the works."

"He had a shampoo wash and then we gave him a haircut and shave. Tyson is really particular about his hair and facial hair."

Bankrupt

"He was pickier than many of the women we have here."

Tyson has been dogged by controversy both in and out of the ring.

His problems include divorce, prison, bankruptcy and threatening to eat the children of champ Lennox Lewis.

In 1992 he was jailed for raping beauty queen Desiree Washington and served three years of a six-year sentence.

He also blew a £300million fortune and two years ago was declared bankrupt owing the taxman £7million.

A Tyson camp source said: "He's been told to calm down and not be as intense."

"He needs to be less macho and more of a new man. If it means that he has to be a bit girlie then so be it."

Tyson, who twice beat British boxing legend Frank Bruno, is in the UK for a series of chat shows across the country.

He speaks with Bruno in Doncaster tomorrow night. Tickets are available from Fisher Promotions on 01925 414123.

IS IT THE FOR LIAM

Eddie will kill ya, Uma!

NO wonder sexy screen star Uma Thurman had a smile on her face while filming in New York with British funnyman Eddie Izzard.

The 35-year-old Kill Bill actress is finding working with the one-time cross dressing comedian, 43, is a thrill.

For while she has been busy making a spectacle of herself knitting baby blankets, he's been busy playing pranks on all the cast and crew.

Our old mate Eddie is brilliant as he takes up the role of Professor Bedlam in the new flick Super EX-Girlfriend.

Trust us, his character's name says it all.

Eddie has had us in stitches with his tales of Tinseltown and the latest on-set tittle-tattle.

We wish he'd hurry home.

Gem loses her sparkle

SOMEONE should have told Hollyoaks honey Gemma Atkinson the Bananarama fashion days are dead and buried. The 21-year-old, who plays Lisa, went out for a night in Liverpool wearing leggings, a tedious top and no coat, despite the icy cold. Wrong, wrong, wrong. At least blonde pin-up Kate Lawler carried off the leggings look with style. The 25-year-old showed off a perfect rear in blue and silver kecks as she headed out to London's Camouflage club.

Christina's a hit as a Mrs

HERE'S where Christina Aguilera, 24, was last night celebrating her wedding to Jordan Bratman, 26.

SPLITS 'N NIC?

He stays home, she jets off

LIAM Gallagher and Nicole Appleton have sparked speculation their relationship is on the rocks.

The couple, above, are planning to spend New Year's Eve thousands of miles apart from one another.

We're told our kid Liam, 33, and his fiancée Nicole, 30, originally hoped to take four-year-old son Gene on a skiing trip to Whistler, Canada, but now the Oasis star doesn't want to go. An insider: "Liam is busy working on his music and he'd rather be at home in Burnage. He will be spending a lot of time in the Northwest and not with Nicole and Gene in London.

EXCLUSIVE

"If Liam stays in England, Nicole plans to take her sister Natalie and turn it into a real girls' week away.

"There's no doubt Natalie and Nicole will have a hoot. They may be sisters but they are also best friends.

"Whistler is a beautiful location, and very laid-back and romantic.

"All the stars love heading there at New Year so it'll be a real shame if Liam decides he definitely won't go.

"He is also waiting to hear what his older brother Noel is doing."

Liam and Nicole have recently had to weather the storm of her ex-fiancee Robbie Williams stirring up trouble.

Taunts

Robbie, 31, revealed he was planning to pen a song about his time with the former All Saints singer.

Liam was later furious when Robbie taunted him, saying: "It'll really fry him, the balding, pot-bellied *****."

Such a charmer... That left Liam striking back by vowing to "break the f---'s legs".

Personally we think they've been through far too much to let their romance simply Slide Away.

HUSH HUSH

WHICH well-known warbler has made a fool of herself by begging a car company question has told motor dealers that she will promote their upmarket range in return for a top notch vehicle. But they decided she wasn't "classy enough". And after hearing her lewd language at a showbiz bash, we are far from surprised.

CHARLOTTE Church has her heart set on getting his and hers scooters for her and boyfriend Gavin Henson...one in pink and one in blue.

The 19-year-old, who performs at the Royal Variety Awards in Cardiff tomorrow, wants her and rugby hunk Gavin, 23, to be able to ride around in style.

An insider said: "Charlotte and Gavin made inquiries about the scooters at a motorcycle shop in Newcastle-Upon-Tyne. They're both very excited!"

The question is: Who will have which colour?

Model and the hypnotist...

NO wonder hypnotist Paul McKenna had one Elle of a smile on his face after dining at London eaterie The Ivy with 42-year-old model Elle Macpherson.

It's the second time in a week the couple have stepped out together.

We can't possibly imagine what kind of charms Paul, 41, is dazzling the dishy woman with.

But whatever magic he's using certainly seems to be working. Kenny Craig anyone?

THE frocks were out in force at the Spike TV Video Game Awards in Universal City, Los Angeles and it was the battle of the babes to hog the limelight.

And the winner was...Carmen Electra, 33, showing off her breast assets at the Gibson Amphitheatre.

While she posed and pouted, it was British beauty Natasha Bedingfield, 23, above, who showed off a seriously smouldering look.

No wonder 30-year-old rap star 50 Cent, top, seemed in such fine form after strutting his stuff on stage...

Monster may have killed before

POLICE fear Valentine killer Paul Dyson may have murdered before – as part of a double act.

Detectives say the ex-bouncer, who was jailed for life for murdering fiancée Joanne Nelson, 22, was once the best pal of killer Antony Campbell.

Two years ago fellow doorman Campbell, 34, stabbed 21-year-old Tina Wright to death in Hull. It led police to believe Campbell may have killed before.

But there are now fears that if he did, it could have been with Dyson after officers found out they were once pals. A source said: "Both Dyson and Campbell worked the doors together in Hull about three years ago."

"We've been told they spent a lot of time together. Knowing what we do, we need to retrace the steps they made together." Unsolved murders and attacks on women across the UK are now set to be probed.

Dyson, 31, strangled Joanne then dumped her body in North Yorkshire on the eve of Valentine's Day this year after they rowed over housework.

UNDER COVER: This refugee in Sangatte kept his identity hidden

HUNDREDS of asylum-seeking Iraqis are queuing up on the other side of the Channel – all desperate to start a new life here in Britain.

Thousands more are on their way. And a major Daily Star Sunday investigation has discovered that they will do anything they can to make it into this country.

Last week it was revealed that most of the 20,000 Iraqi asylum seekers who had made it into Britain since the infamous Sangatte refugee camp closed in 2002 have had their applications to stay here turned down.

The process of booting them out of the country is now about to start.

But according to leaked Home Office documents there are many more massing across the Channel in France.

We visited Calais and nearby Sangatte last week after the French interior ministry revealed a 14% increase in asylum seekers in recent months.

And our reporter came face to face with the massed hordes, most of them Iraqis, who freely admit they are determined to get across to Britain – illegally if necessary – just for the benefits.

Within minutes of arriving at the French port, we met two asylum seekers from Iraq.

Azim, 20, and Ali, 18, had WALKED for six months from their home town of Suleimani to get to France.

Now they are living rough on the streets, waiting for their chance – any chance – to get to England.

Money

And they vowed that they will get to the UK any way they can. But once they get here they do NOT plan to work.

Azim said: "I don't want a job. France is very beautiful but they don't give me any money."

"We hear that Britain is a wonderful place and we will be taken care of."

"Eventually I want to be a student and learn. The British system of learning is one of the best in the world and I want to be part of that."

"We will never give up on getting into
